

ILM: Rise above the rest in your career

ILM professional leadership qualifications are the most widely recognised in the UK. Because we've worked hard to rise above the rest, we can make sure your training supports you, whenever you decide to leave the RAF.

Prove you're extraordinary, with ILM

Rise above the rest with ILM's market-leading qualifications

ILM qualifications complement the great training you receive during your RAF career. Apply for your qualification today and make sure your hard work serves you well, even when you leave the Armed Forces.

Level 2 You have learned to manage your work, supervise others and build and participate in a team.

C Effective Team Skills BRTC

Level 3 Your ability to manage yourself and assess the performance of others equips you to build and lead a small team.

C Leadership and Management JMLC

Level 4 You understand operational needs, organisational policies and procedures, and dynamics between people.

A Managing Equality and Diversity in Organisations EDAC/EDAR

D Leadership and Management NCAIT

Level 5 Your knowledge of leadership is complemented by performance management skills.

A Leadership and Management IMLC

C Leadership and Management AMLC

C Leadership and Management ROIT

D Leadership and Management IOTC/SERE

Level 6 You can recognise operational issues and identify solutions, while leading and managing effectively.

A Management JODP

Level 7 Your critical thinking skills equip you for advanced and effective leadership.

A Leadership and Management HMLC

D Leadership and Management ICSC(Air)

Award, Certificate or Diploma?

The qualifications available to you will depend on the level of RAF training you complete. But each one is carefully developed to help you create a CV that will impress civilian employers.

- A Award is the most concise qualification
- C Certificate denotes a broad base of knowledge and skills
- D Diploma is the most comprehensive qualification, with an extensive programme of learning – typically a years' worth of learning

Choose the best qualification for your future career today, visit:

i-l-m.com/raf

ILM is dedicated to developing well-rounded leaders who will drive an organisation forward.

We recognise the value of military training and have mapped the content and assessments of CLM courses to fit our industry-leading qualifications. So, whether you are a junior leader or a senior officer, your civilian qualifications can grow alongside your military career, ready for when you leave. As part of the the City and Guilds of London Institute, ILM operates under a Royal Charter.

“It is vital for RAF personnel to know that the training they receive is highly prized by civilian organisations and employers, and ILM accreditation assists individuals when they decide to move on to a new career or challenge.”

Chris Kay, Sqn Ldr
SO2 Accreditation & Education at RAF Central Training School.

ILM keeps your skills relevant

We're the UK's leading specialist provider of leadership, management and coaching qualifications.

We work closely with the RAF to offer qualifications that add value to the expertise you develop during your training.

These qualifications make your skills relevant to civilian employers, so that when you choose to leave the RAF, you'll have the benefit of the best qualifications around.

We're the industry leader

Like you, we're the best at what we do. That's why our qualifications are recognised by more employers than any of those provided by our competitors.

ILM helps keep you employable for life

Our qualifications are tailored to help you make the most of your training. They present the skills and abilities you gain during your RAF training in a way that employers find relevant and valuable.

Over 1m people have already chosen ILM

By choosing ILM, you'll join the ranks of over one million people who've already discovered the value an ILM qualification adds to their CV.

ILM qualifications are as flexible as you are

Life after the RAF could take you anywhere. ILM qualifications are flexible enough to ensure you can always be prepared for what happens next.

Add value to your career today

Once you've completed your training, you'll be eligible to choose an ILM qualification with no further work or assessment to complete.

Applying for your qualification is a straightforward process, be sure to keep this checklist handy and follow these simple steps.

Step 1.

Complete RAF training course

Once you've completed your training, you can choose a complementary ILM qualification that employers will really value. Make sure you set aside time after your training to start your application process.

Step 2.

Choose your ILM qualification

Visit i-l-m.com/raf to see the qualification that your course is accredited with and complete the relevant application form.

Step 3.

Submit your application to us

Send your application, along with your choice of payment method, to ILM at the address provided or online at armedforces@i-l-m.com. We'll do everything else for you.

Step 4.

Receive your qualification and certificate

Your qualification certificate will be sent to your chosen address. Once received, you'll be able to prove you're extraordinary to any employer, wherever your career takes you.

“The ILM Level 5 qualification enabled me to enrol on a fast-track honours degree and has opened up further career possibilities.”

Elizabeth Clark
Engineering Officer Cadet, RAF

Choose the best qualifications for your future career today, visit:

i-l-m.com/raf